4. Lawful bases for processing

There are six lawful bases for processing; these are Consent, Contract, Legal obligation, Vital interests, Public Task and Legitimate interests.

Legal Basis	Will be applied in these situations
Consent	The individual has given clear consent for us to process their personal data for a specific purpose. Parental consent will be sought for all individuals under the age of 13, who have not reached their 13 th birthday. A separate Privacy Notice specifically for children will be provided. Individuals have a right to withdraw consent at any stage, see Your Rights .
Contract	Processing of information is necessary for a contract that the PCC may have with an individual, or because they have asked the PCC to take specific steps before entering into a contract.
Legal obligation	The processing is necessary for the PCC to comply with the law (not including contractual obligations).
Vital interests	The processing is necessary to protect someone's life.
Public Task	The processing is necessary for the PCC to perform a task in the public interest or for official functions, and the task or function has a clear basis in law. If you have freely provided us with personal information for a specific purpose, our lawful basis for processing is that of a Public Task .
Legitimate interests	The processing is necessary for legitimate reasons or the legitimate interests of a third party unless there is good reason to protect the individual's personal data which overrides those legitimate interests. This does not apply to a public authority processing data to perform your official tasks.

Our aim is not to delay the process of processing information, but if we cannot identify a lawful basis for processing your information we will have to contact you to obtain your Consent (or Parental Consent in the case of children under the age of 13) which may cause a slight delay.

5. How we handle personal information

Personal information will be processed fairly and lawfully with appropriate justification. We will strive to ensure that any personal information used by or on behalf of the PCC is of the highest quality in terms of accuracy, relevance, adequacy and proportionality (it is not excessive), is kept up-to-date as required, is protected appropriately, and is, reviewed, retained and securely destroyed when no longer required. See Your Rights.

6. How we secure it

The PCC takes the security of all personal information very seriously. The PCC will comply with the relevant parts of the DPA and GDPR relating to security. The PCC will ensure that appropriate policy, training, technical and procedural measures are in place, including audit and inspection, to protect all manual and electronic information systems from data loss and misuse, and permit access to them only when there is a legitimate reason to do so, and then under strict guidelines as to what use may be made of any personal information contained within them. These procedures are continuously managed and enhanced to ensure up-to-date security.

Our website and computer systems are protected by certified firewalls in order to protect your personal information from access by unauthorised persons and against unlawful processing. The website uses the latest technology and is backed up regularly. All outgoing and incoming emails are scanned for viruses.

7. Who might we share information with

The Office of the PCC is closely linked to North Wales Police and we have a shared service agreement and information sharing agreement in place. For us to achieve our duties we may need to share personal information with them. If we do not identify a legitimate basis to share your information we will seek your consent before doing so.

We will share some information without your consent only to report or prevent a crime, prevent fraud or if required by law.

With regard to complaints received, regulations allows for information to be referred to the appropriate authority. If a complaint is received by the Office of the Police and Crime Commissioner but the appropriate authority is the Chief Constable, the information will be immediately referred to the Chief Constable.

The Police and Crime Commissioner and the Independent Office for Police Conduct are the Relevant Review Bodies for police complaints. Requests for Reviews by the Police and Crime Commissioner will be referred to an independent consultant for their consideration.

8. How long do we keep hold of information

We keep personal information in line with our Retention and Destruction Policy. This means that we will, after a specified period destroy personal information contained in paper format or electronically.

In certain circumstances, we have a statutory obligation to keep personal information for a minimum period of time, for example financial information is retained for up to 7 years for taxation purposes.

9. Cookies

Privacy Policy

Cookies are used for collecting specific user information from our website; this collects only enough information for us to see which pages are most viewed. Overall, cookies help us provide a better website, by enabling us to monitor which pages are useful and which are not.

Our Cookie Policy on our website explains how you can choose to accept or decline cookies. Most web browsers automatically accept cookies, but you can usually modify your browser setting to decline cookies if you prefer. Declining cookies may prevent you from taking full advantage of the website.

This statement covers only the PCC website and does not apply to other websites linked from our site. The PCC is not responsible for the content, performance, accuracy, privacy of external websites that may be linked from its site, although we endeavour to provide links only to reputable organisations. The views expressed on external sites and on any social networking services do not necessarily represent the views of, or endorsement by the PCC.

10. Your Rights

The right to be informed

Individuals have the right to be informed about the collection and use of their personal data. We will provide individuals with information including: our purposes for processing personal data, our retention periods for that personal data, and who it will be shared with. All the information relating to processing data is contained in this Policy. We will ensure that this Policy is easily available to individuals that access our website, attend our offices or contact us by mail or email.

The right to access

Individuals have a right to confirmation that their data is being processed, access to their information and other supplementary information contained in this Policy.

Accessing personal data in this way is known as making a 'subject access request'. The GDPR clarifies that the reason for allowing individuals to access their personal data is so that they are aware of and can verify the lawfulness of the processing.

Requests to access information should be made to the Data Controller, please see contact details below. We will respond to these requests within one calendar month.

The right to rectification

Individuals have the right for inaccurate personal data to be rectified, or completed if it is incomplete. An individual can make a request for rectification verbally or in writing. We will respond to these requests within one calendar month, although in certain circumstances we do have the right to refuse a request for rectification.

The right to erasure or the right to be forgotten

Individuals have a right to have their personal data erased. Individuals can make a request for erasure verbally or in writing. We will respond to these requests within one calendar month. The right is not absolute and applies only in certain circumstances.

The right to restrict processing

Privacy Policy

Individuals have the right to request the restriction or suppression of their personal data. This is not an absolute right and applies only in certain circumstances. When processing is restricted, you are permitted to store the personal data, but may not use it.

An individual can make a request for restriction verbally or in writing. We will respond to these requests within one calendar month.

The right to data portability

The right to data portability allows individuals to obtain and reuse their personal data for their own purposes across different services. It allows them to move, copy or transfer personal data easily from one IT environment to another in a safe and secure way, without hindrance to usability.

An individual can make a request to transmit their personal data directly to another Data Controller without hindrance, if this is feasible, we will do this but we will have to consider the technical feasibility of transmission on a request by request basis. The right to object

Individuals have the right to object to:

- processing based on legitimate interests or the performance of a task in the public interest/exercise of official authority (including profiling);
- *direct marketing (including profiling); and
- *processing for purposes of scientific/historical research and statistics.

If an individual objects to their data being used, we will stop processing the personal data unless we can demonstrate compelling legitimate grounds for the processing, which override the interests, rights and freedoms of the individual; or the processing is for the establishment, exercise or defence of legal claims.

(*The PCC does not engage in direct marketing nor process data for scientific/historical research and statistics).

Rights in relation to automated decision making and profiling

The PCC does not carry out any automated decision-making or profiling. If he were to do so he would carry out a Data Protection Impact Assessment and revise this Privacy Policy accordingly.
